Australian Law Journal

GENERAL EDITOR
Justice François Kunc

ASSISTANT GENERAL EDITORS
Nuncio D'Angelo  Angelina Gomez  Ruth Higgins  Emily Vale
Solicitor, Sydney  Lawyer, Perth  Barrister, Sydney  Solicitor, Sydney

The mode of citation of this volume is
(2018) 92 ALJ [page]

The views expressed in editorial comment, articles or notes are those of the author or contributor, and are not to be taken as being the views of, or endorsed by, the journal editors unless otherwise indicated.

The Australian Law Journal is a refereed journal.

Australian Law Journal Reports

PRODUCTION EDITOR
Carolyn May

CASE REPORTERS
John Carroll
Colleen Tognetti
Clare Tuckerman

The mode of citation of this volume is:
92 ALJR [page]
CURRENT ISSUES – Editor: Justice François Kunc
The Minister vs The Courts ................................................................. 155
Judicial Conduct: The United States .................................................. 155
Judicial Conduct: Australia ............................................................... 156
Reducing the Backlog in Criminal Courts ........................................ 157
A Conversation About Studying Law (Imagined) .............................. 157
Core Business for the High Court? ................................................... 158

CONVEYANCING AND PROPERTY – Editors: Robert Aneval SC and Brendan Edgeworth
E-Conveyancing, Contracts for the Sale of Land and Deeds ................. 160
Interest of a Purchaser Under a Contract from a Mortgagee Exercising its Power of Sale .... 161
Strata Schemes and Short-Term Lettings (Again) ................................. 163

AROUND THE NATION: VICTORIA – Editor: Justice Clyde Croft
A Lease or a Licence: How Vagueness Occasions Substantive Unfairness ................. 165

PERSONALIA – Editor: Emily Vale
Commonwealth
Chief Justice Diana Bryant ................................................................. 167

RECENT CASES – Editor: Ruth C A Higgins SC
Administrative Law – Judicial Review – Availability of Certiorari – Error of Law on Face of Record – Non-Jurisdictional Error .................................................. 169
United Kingdom – Privy Council – Cayman Islands – Judicial Independence – Apparent Bias .... 171
A “DIMINISHED NATION”? THE RACIAL DISCRIMINATION ACT 1975, THE NATIVE TITLE ACT 1993 AND CONSTITUTIONAL RECOGNITION OF INDIGENOUS AUSTRALIANS

Professor Jonathan Fulcher

The Native Title Act 1993 (Cth) is discriminatory in its treatment of Indigenous peoples’ land interests compared with those of freeholders, particularly in relation to the provision of public infrastructure on their land. Section 7 of the Native Title Act does not permit the Racial Discrimination Act 1975 (Cth) to be used to effect a cure of that defect. Constitutional recognition for Indigenous Australians must address this incongruity. Indigenous Australians want it to be addressed in the referendum questions. Some commentators have warned against addressing it. Father Frank Brennan, for example, believes addressing such discrimination will lead to the failure of the referendum. This article asks if there can be an accommodation of the two views, both of which are compelling in their own way. It also suggests ways in which the Constitution and legislation might be amended to address such discrimination if ultimately the politics of the referendum questions does not allow discrimination to be dealt with in the Constitution in the way many Indigenous people would prefer.

THE DOCTRINE OF FORBEARANCE

Jeremy Stoljar

The common law doctrine of forbearance emerged in the 19th century and remains part of Australian law, having been recognised by the High Court of Australia on a number of occasions, including most recently in Agricultural & Rural Finance Pty Ltd v Gardiner (2008) 238 CLR 570. The doctrine draws a distinction between an alteration to the mode of performance of a contract and an alteration of the contract itself. This article examines the genesis and ambit of the doctrine. It then considers the doctrine critically and asks whether it has continuing utility.

THE DUTY TO MITIGATE: A COMPARATIVE ANALYSIS BETWEEN THE ENGLISH COMMON LAW AND THE CISG

Bruno Zeller

This article looks closely at how two systems of law namely the Convention on the International Sale of Goods (CISG) and the common law resolve an important principle of law, in this case the issues of mitigating losses and the awarding of damages once a contract has been breached. The analysis relies on Art 77 of the CISG which deals with mitigation, and the recent High Court decision in Thai Airways International Public Co Ltd v KI Holdings Co Ltd [2015] EWHC 1250 (Comm). The article also briefly traces the problematic application of the CISG in Australia. The purpose of this article is to indicate how mitigation ought to be applied in Australia under the CISG by highlighting the differences between the CISG and the common law.

BOOKS – Editor: Angelina A Gomez

Books Received

(2018) 92 ALJ 149
Australian Law Journal Reports

HIGH COURT REPORTS – Staff of Thomson Reuters

DECISIONS RECEIVED IN FEBRUARY 2018

Australian Building and Construction Commissioner v Construction, Forestry, Mining and Energy Union (High Court of Australia; Industrial Law) ([2018] HCA 3) ............... 219
Australian Federal Police, Commissioner of v Hart (Criminal Law) ([2018] HCA 1) ........ 154
Commonwealth v Flying Fighters Pty Ltd (Criminal Law) ([2018] HCA 1) .................. 154
Commonwealth v Yak 3 Investments Pty Ltd (Criminal Law) ([2018] HCA 1) .............. 154
Falzon v Minister for Immigration and Border Protection (Citizenship and Migration) ([2018] HCA 2) ........................................................................................................ 201
Maxcon Constructions Pty Ltd v Vadasz (Contracts) ([2018] HCA 5) ......................... 277
Probuild Constructions (Aust) Pty Ltd v Shade Systems Pty Ltd (Administrative Law; Contracts; Courts and Judges) ([2018] HCA 4) ......................................................... 248