

AUSTRALIAN JOURNAL OF COMPETITION AND CONSUMER LAW

Volume 21, Number 4

December 2013

EDITORIAL

The perils of alleging unconscionability	241
---	-----

ARTICLES

Part IIIA – the current state of play – Verity Quinn and Rosannah Healy

This article looks at the current state of Pt IIIA of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) and the benefits of Australia having a national third party access regime. It includes a brief history of the regime and recent developments. Focusing largely on declaration, the article includes a discussion of the recent High Court and Australian Competition Tribunal decisions regarding applications to declare various iron ore railways in the Pilbara. It concludes with the authors' view of the key benefits brought about by having a national third party access regime in place.	244
---	-----

ACCESS TO SERVICES

Business as usual? Implications of the Pilbara decision for access to gas pipeline facilities – Thomas Kaldor and David Mierendorff	270
---	-----

ADMINISTRATION AND NATIONAL COMPETITION POLICY

Resolving business to business disputes: A new specific role for mandatory industry codes of conduct – Frank Zumbo	276
--	-----

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Where the cure ends up worse than the disease: Vaccines and the implied warranty as to merchantability – Bernard McCabe	281
---	-----

ENERGY ETCHINGS

Energy network regulation: Consumers in focus – Andrew Reeves	285
---	-----

COMMENTS FROM COMMERCE

Australian infrastructure regulation – A business perspective – Simon Pryor	289
---	-----

REPORT FROM EUROPE

Modernisation of the European union trade defence system – reform de jure and de facto – Laurent Ruessmann and Jochen Beck	294
--	-----

REPORT FROM NORTH AMERICA

The Supreme Court decision on pay for delay: An economic perspective – Christopher Pleatsikas 297

REPORT FROM RUSSIA

Regulation of distant trading in Russia – Julia Borisova 303

BENCHMARKS 306

VOLUME 21 – 2013

Table of Authors 311
Table of Cases 315
Index 323